Bart Campbell : The Door is Open: Memoir of a Soup Kitchen Volunteer before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised The Door is Open: Memoir of a Soup Kitchen Volunteer:

Finalist, Hubert Evans Non-Fiction Prize (BC Book Prizes) Finalist, City of Vancouver Book Prize Long listed for CBC Canada Reads 2015 The Door Is Open is a compassionate, reflective, and informative memoir about three-and-a-half years spent volunteering at a skid row drop-in centre in Vancouver's downtown eastside. In an area most renowned for its shocking social ills, and the notorious distinction of holding the country's "very poorest forward sortation area of all 7,000 postal prefixes," Bart Campbell dismantles our hard-held notions about poverty, the disenfranchised, substance abuse, and the nature of charity. The Door Is Open is one man's story of a transformative journey into the complicated and complex world of poverty. Praise for The Door is Open: "The best recent book on the human face of this country's outcasts." (The Toronto Star) "The human face of poverty that grips upward of 5 million Canadians is vividly portrayed in The Door Is Open" (Quill Quire) "my pick as the best non-fiction book published in 2001" (discord)
