David Kauders : The Greatest Crash: How contradictory policies are sinking the global economy before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised The Greatest Crash: How contradictory policies are sinking the global economy:

"Radical thinkers might have a point" - Financial Times The Greatest Crash argues that the financial system which evolved from the early Italian bankers has now reached a roadblock. The weight of debt already created prevents further economic expansion, while paying down the debt shrinks economies. To escape this trap, evolution is needed. But bureaucratic design, delegated government, and group think, all combine to prevent evolution.

"Radical thinkers might have a point" - --Financial Times, FTfm, 3rd October 2011 About the Author David Kauders is an investment manager. He was educated at Latymer Upper School, Jesus College Cambridge and Cranfield School of Management. David has been described in the financial press as a maverick", a superbear" and by the Sunday Telegraph Money as no ordinary manager ... his prediction came to fruition".
